DEED Report – Sondra Meredith provided an update on the work the certification office has been doing in preparation for the requirements of the Alaska Reads Act. There is a link on the certification website to assist teachers who are working to ensure they meet the updated certification requirements. K-3 classroom teachers need to complete approved training or an approved exam; they will have two years to complete this requirement. Reading teachers, special education teachers, specialists and elementary school administrators also must complete these requirements. DEED is providing a number of no-cost training opportunities for educators. The fee to add the endorsement to a certificate will be $50. If an educator chooses an exam option, there is no financial support for any associated costs. Regulations will be finalized shortly and the department can then publish a list of approved courses. Paraprofessionals are not required to take the training, but future opportunities will be offered. Reading teachers will need to take additional coursework/exams as well as demonstration of significant impact on reading achievement with students (certified at the school level), and receive a reading teacher endorsement.

Introductions/Updates from Communities: All members briefly re-introduced themselves, their role in education and shared the last book they read.

Public Comment: There was no public comment.

Approval of Minutes: It was moved by Kim Bergey and seconded by Emma Melkerson to approve the minutes of the February 2-3, 2023 meeting. Corrections were noted. The motion passed to adopt the amended minutes.

A brief break was taken at 10:07 a.m.
Executive Director’s Reports: Melody Mann delivered her reports in the following areas.

Activity Report: Melody reviewed open case statistics; several cases are pending criminal cases. She wanted to remind educators to ensure they have exhausted local complaint options through their school district before filing a complaint with the PTPC. She has also been working with Susan Mitchell, AAG, regarding whether opening an investigation is appropriate on a few cases.

Background check results on new certificate applicants tend to be low-level issues, mainly DUIs. She noted requests from other state licensing offices regarding PTPC actions.

Melody reviewed her recent presentations to the House Education Committee, principals and special education teachers, and other organizations. She also did a recent presentation to a group of students.

She noted that Mary Carlson’s appointment was recently confirmed by the Legislature, and discussed her attendance at a DEED/state director’s meeting and learning about tribal compacting. She has been working with AKPEI to potentially bring up NASDTEC presenters for state conferences.

She is working to find time to collaborate with DEED regarding an educator ethics e-Learning module.

Financial Report: Melody reviewed the financial report. There was discussion around the benefits of in-person meetings versus online meetings.

Kim Bergey moved to set the dates for the 2023-2024 PTPC meetings as shown above. Jamie Burgess seconded the motion. No discussion; motion passed unanimously.

Contractual Obligations Policy
Melody requested that the Commission revisit the policy, since breach of contract is the single-most common topic for a complaint or request for information that she receives. The Commission did not recommend a change in the policy, but stated that help or tip sheets for both educators and district administrators would be very useful documents to create and share, given the current hiring climate in education.

E-Learning Module
Melody reiterated that she is working on development of this in conjunction with DEED.

Melody said that in most cases, the stipulated agreement would be available if requested, but no other documentation. However, if an administrative hearing had been held, any documentation entered into evidence would be available pursuant to a public records request.
